Building muscle in the gaps of your day

This month focuses on one core theme across four weeks. Each week builds on the last — read the science, apply the daily actions, track your progress.

Your 4 weeks at a glance

Week 21 Muscle Protein Synthesis

Week 22 Push Protocol

Week 23 Lower Body Loading

Week 24 Grip Strength & Longevity

Your daily non-negotiable: 3.4 minutes of vigorous movement, every day. Everything this month layers on top of that foundation.

Weeks 1 & 2

WEEK 21

Muscle Protein Synthesis

You don't need an hour of lifting. Muscle protein synthesis (MPS) is triggered in as few as 3 sets. Brief, intense resistance effort is nearly as effective as long sessions.

- Mon–Tue: 10 push-ups + 15 squats + 10 dips (chair). Do this twice across the day.
- Wed–Thu: Same movements, slower tempo (3 sec down, 1 sec up). Feel the difference.
- Fri–Sun: Rest. Let MPS peak (it peaks 24–48 hours post-effort).

WEEK 22

Push Protocol

3-minute upper body: push-ups, pike push-ups, tricep dips. Activates chest, shoulders, triceps — without equipment or floor space beyond your desk.

- Mon: Max push-ups in 60 sec → 30 sec rest → max pike push-ups → 30 sec rest → max dips.
- Wed: Same circuit, but controlled speed throughout. Total time: under 4 minutes.
- Fri: Add one set. Three rounds total. Rest 45 seconds between rounds.

Weeks 3 & 4

WEEK 23

Lower Body Loading

Squats, lunges, and hip hinges target the largest muscles in your body — which means the greatest metabolic return per minute of effort.

- Mon–Tue: 20 bodyweight squats → 10 lunges each side → 15 glute bridges. Three rounds.
- Wed–Thu: Single-leg variations: Bulgarian split squat (10 each), single-leg bridge (15 each).
- Fri–Sun: Combine upper and lower: 5-minute full-body strength snack.

WEEK 24

Grip Strength & Longevity

Grip strength is the #1 physical predictor of all-cause mortality in studies of 40+ year-olds. Train it with dead hangs, carries, and isometric holds.

- Mon–Fri: 20-second dead hang from any bar (door frame bar works). Once per day.
- Sat: Add farmer's carry: carry heavy bags for 2 minutes. Note grip fatigue.
- Sun: Track your dead hang time. It will improve measurably within 2 weeks.
